SUCCESS OF THE GREAT SOUND-MONEY PARADE CELEBRATED.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC DINNER AT DELMONICO'S WITH MAYOR STRONG PRESIDING-SPEECHES BY CHARLES EMORY SMITH, GENERAL HORACE PORTER, EX-SECRETARY

Enthusiasm, good-fellowship and exultation were unbounded at the jubilee dinner of the Business Men's Republican and Sound Money Association at Delmonico's last evening. All the organizations of business men that united in the great parade for sound money last fall were represented at the nner. Over 300 men who had been active and prominent in organizing the host which General Porter led up Broadway sat at the tables and feasted from 6.20 to 3 o'clock. From 9 o'clock until late hour they enjoyed the speeches, and were thoroughly happy.

The large banquet hall was decorated with many flags. Every man present at the dinner found a small silk American flag folded in his napkin, and he waved it some hundred times of ore later in the evening. There was a still smallng for each man to place in his buttonhole. The nenu card was ornamented with an engraving of ne of the McKinley and Hobart flags which ever Broadway in the campaign. Other devices celebrate the great parade and the glorious viory that followed it on Election Day.

Mayor Strong, as president of the association presided at the dinner, although he was suffering with an attack of gout and had to walk on crutches. his place at the guests' table. On his right hand at Charles S. Fairchild, Charles Emory Smith fornelius N. Bliss, John Proctor Clarke, William erri and Henry L. Einstein, and on his left hanwere General Horace Porter and the Rev. Dr. Mad Peters. Seats at the same table had been vided for General Anson G. McCook and Henry iall, who chose to sit with some friends at other bles. Ex-Mayor Hewitt and Carl Schurz, who had been expected to make speeches, were kept away from the dinner. Dr. Peters asked the blessing on the feast.

A LETTER FROM MR. M'KINLEY. After coffee and cigars were served. Mayor Strong announced that E. A. Drake, the secretary of the association, would read a letter from Presidentelect McKinley, and the hum of voices ceased while Mr. Drake read the following, addressed to while Mr. Drake read the robusts.

My Irear Sir: Kindly accept and convey to the members of the Rusiness Men's Republican and Sound Money Association my hearty thanks for an invitation to attend your dinner on February 25. It would give me pleasure to attend if other and more presents engagements did not make that impossible. I wish for your association the greatest success in its special and very important field. We must make good every obligation to our National creditors, express or implied, in the best money known to the world at the time of payment. We cannot adopt a different policy than that of sound money, worth its take the world over, and constantly maintain every dollar of it at par, without trouble and distress in the end to all our business interests and citizens. Poor money never made any country rich and sound money will not and can not make any one boor. The contention between the two conflicting ideas or systems is an old one, and bids fair always in some form to exist. Let us resolutely set our faces for right and never tire of its earnest and f-arless advocacy.

Again thanking you for your kind invitation, I am, with best wishes, yours very trafty.

"Three cheers for William McKinley!" several

"Three cheers for William McKinley!" several men shouled at once as the reading of the letter eded. All the men in the hall were on their feet in a moment, waving flags and cheering. Then a quartet in the balcony began to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the men remained standing and joined in the chorus, conmained standing and joint thuing to wave the flags. The demonstration continued for ten minutes. Then there were more continued for ten minutes. Then ther cheers for President-elect McKinley.

HEARTY GREETING FOR THE MAYOR. The Mayor received a welcome of cheers when he rose to make the opening address, and the applause broke out afresh whenever he gave expression to a patriotic sentiment. He described the shock that was felt in the business world after the nomination of Bryan and Sewall and the adoption of the platform by the Chicago Convention, and then he said:

'Rally round the flag' was heard at every street corner. (Cheers.) Party lines were obliterated (Applause.) The issues between the two great political parties were changed. Democrats and Republicans alike vied with each other in forming clubs and raising the Starry Banner at their headquarters From the Battery to the Bronx, the entire length of Broadway and parallel streets and cross streets, could be seen the flag of our country, representing the practical and cordial union of the

When the Mayor described the glories of the parade he stirred up more enthusiasm. He said: when the day of the 31st of October dawned upon us, and the bright sun shone in benediction, every patriotic neart leaped for joy. Martial music could be heard throughout the city, and the measured tread of the laboring man, the manufacturer, the merchant, the banker, the lawyer, the minister and the doctor—in fact, all who represented the affects interests in this community—joined in keeping siep to the music of the Union. That grand march extended from the Eattery to Forty-scond-st. Promptly at 15 o'clock the order. "Forward, march!" was given by our grand marshal, General Porter, and with equal promptness each man obeyed. Carrying their flars, they marched from the Battery up Broadway to Eighth-st, to Fifthere, to Forty-second-st, and never was Broadway so profusely decorated. Fings hung from almost every window, and from the housetops could be seen our Starry Banner waved by patriotic women and children hidding us codspeed in marching to virtury. The pomp and circumstance of war never exceeded in marting is plendor the magnificence of this business men's parade. (Applause.)

A compliment to General Porter caused the Mayor to be interrupted long enough for the men In the hall to unite in three cheers for the man who was the grand marshal in the parade. The Mayor went on to describe the anxiety that prefailed on the eve of the election, and the joy that has felt when the election of McKinley and Hobirt was assured. When he closed with the declaraion, "Confidence was restored and the country said," there was long-continued applause. quartet sang "Rally 'Round the Flag," and everybody got up and sang and cheered again.

A SPIRIT TO LIKE.

Chirles Emory Smith arose to speak, and was cheefed when he said: "I like the spirit of this gathering." He encouraged laughter for a time and kept his audience in the best humor by some happy remarks about the election, and later he gave expression to sentiments which were applauded vigorously. Among the sentences were the MR. BRYAN ON THE ROSTRUM the fable, and leave the management of their following:

following:

The bible of sound money is the bible of New-York, and that is the bible of the entire country, (Applause.) Your Chamber of Commerce led the reform movement for sound money, and it was your Chamber of Commerce that put your Mayor in office. It is the commercial interest that carries the flag of England to all quarters of the globe, but it carries civilization with it, and because of that we are willing to see it anywhere but on the American Continent. (Applause.) American commerce is reserved for American supremacy. (Applause.)

It is time to remove misunderstanding. It is time to bring our people together and bring them nearer in chivalrous brotherhood. It is a time to bring our people together west and East. It is a time for National fellowship. We may well pray, "God give us men." (Cheers and applause.)

That majestic procession which for a whole day made Broadway a matchless pancrama of fluttering flags and marching hosts was symbolic of the union of patriots for commercial security and public honor. (Applause.)

union of patriots for commercial security and pub-lie honor. (Applause.)

We stand on the threshold of grand opportuni-ties and splendid development, and I believe we shall successfully pass it. In a little more than a year we shall be in the throes of the Congressional elections of 1898. Between now and then we must disarm the dragon or we may sow a fresh crop of dragon's teeth. It is for the new Administration and the new Congress to swing open the doors of returning prosperity, and it 's for patriots of all parties to uphold their hands in that paramount necessity of the hour." (Cheers.)

EX-SECRETARY FAIRCHILD'S REMARKS.

The next speaker was ex-Secretary Charles S. Fairchild, and he said that a few days ago he had been favored with an invitation to attend the Carnegie Hall meeting where Mr. Bryan was speaking. "I preferred," he said, "to sit on the platform Mr. Fairchild referred scornfully to Bryan's dec-

Mr. Fairchild referred scornfully to Bryan's deciaration that this was "the enemy's country." "Is it any wonder." he said, "that men of all shades of politics who loved their country railied to the standard of sound money in the face of such a declaration?" Mr. Fairchild spoke a word of warning to the Republican party. "There must be no oersonal strifes." he went on; "no bickerings for little offices, for as you will deal by your country so will your country deal with you."

Mr. Fairchild, in conclusion, said that the Sound Money Democrats asked no reward for their efforts in the last campaign. "We only ask, he said, "that you carry out the promises and the hopes of the last campaign, and if you do so you may be assured you will have no factional opposition." (Cheers.)

GENERAL PORTER'S ADVICE.

General Horace Porter was the next speaker. ile made a witty speech, reviewing the progress of e Sound Money Association and the great parade. le said that organizations like the Business Men's le said that organizations like the Business Men's Republican and Sound Money Association were of incalculable service during the last campaign. He cok occasion to say that these associations should be the means of making business men pay more attention to politics. "Business men," he said, "should not go to pientes or dinners on Election Day, but they should pay more attention to politics and what is taking place in their districts." This sentiment was received with applause. The Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur, who came in late, was the next speaker. Dr. MacArthur said that he was gratified to see the way in which the American flag was over the schools of New-York City and the way in which the American flag was over the schools of New-York City and the way in which the American flag was over the schools of New-York City and the way in which the American flag," said no "homored in Turkey," and I say that for months hat flag has been trailed in the dust in Turkey." It told of two men who had been arrested in Turkey. "One was a Canadian, and was released upon the demand of the English Government. The other, Knopp, an American, is still constructively a disoner. (Cries of "Shame!" "Shame!") I am a man of peace, but I believe that the Turks should be taught to respect the American flag, and a man-of-war should be used to make them respect that flag."

John Proctor Clarke was the last speaker. The officers of the Business Men's Republican and Sound Money Association are: Mayor Strong, president; Charles F. Homer and Frank Erainard, vice-presidents, and Edward A. Drake, secretary and treasurer. THE CUBAN QUESTION.

A BRUTAL ALTERNATIVE.

From The Baltimore American. It is evident from present indications that in the Sanguily matter Olney has won in his own way, but it is such a bad way that it makes his victory worse than a defeat, for the alternative he gave to old Sanguily was as brutal as it was unnecessary.

A CRITICAL SITUATION. From The Providence Journal.

From The Providence Journal.

The Lee episode has given to the jingoes in Congress Just the stimulas needed to set them all shouting once more in their most bellicose and reckless tone. It is reported, also, to have angered the Spanish authorities to a point where they may possibly do something that will still further kindle the war feeling in this country. The situation is therefore undentably critical. AMERICANS MUST HAVE THEIR RIGHTS. From The Boston Globe.

From The Boston Globe.

The mediaeval and brutal methods which Spain still employs in dealing with her political captives have too long been tolerated. It is high time that the injurious and insulting application of the "incomunicado" plan with prisoners calling themselves Americans should be abolished altogether. Our Government is bound to insist that no man under arrest in Cuba who appeals with right to the American flag for protection and a fair trial shall ever make appeal in value.

FOR PURPOSES OF OBSTRUCTION. From The Philadelphia Times. From The Philadelphia Times.

The obvious fact is that all this talk has no other purpose than agitation and obstruction, to prevent the passage of the appropriation bills and put the incoming Administration at the mercy of a called incoming Administration at the mercy of a called session of Congress. The vote by which the appropriation bills were set aside sufficiently shows this. The majority was made up almost entirely of the silver men.

HIS LECTURE LAST NIGHT AT CARNEGIE HALL.

A GOOD-SIZED AND FAVORABLY DISPOSED AUDI-ENCE PAY TO HEAR HIM SAY THINGS THAT COULD BE HEARD LAST FALL

William J. Bryan last evening made his first public appearance in this city since disaster over-took and overwhelmed him and his cause in the Presidential campaign last fall. The occasion was the first of a series of lectures to be given nder the auspices of the New-York Bimetallic Association, and the place was Carnegie Music It cost money to hear Mr. Bryan last evening, whereas he could be heard for nothing when he was last in this city. Orchestra chairs cost $150, and the rests of the seats were sold at proportionate prices, but, for all that, it was a good-sized audience that assembled to hear the champion of the lost cause say his say. Perhaps two-thirds of the orchestra chairs were filled and both upper galleries were crowded. The boxes, however, were empty, excepting about a dozen.

The audience was a friendly one, and it was evident from the moment Mr. Bryan made his appearice that he was in the house of his friends. On the platform were several tiers of seats, and about half of the seats there were occupied. Among those who sat there were Judge Fitzgerald, John F. Carroll, Dr. William F. Holcombe, Colonel William L. Brown, Congressman F. G. Newlands, Thomas

W. Cantwell, Congressman William Sulzer, William P. Mitchell, Colonel Alexander Troup, of New-Haven, and "Jimmy" Oliver. The solitary occupant of one of the boxes displayed the silver banner of the Sixteen to One Club, whose members

THE OLD FAMILIAR TALK. Then he proceeded to reiterate the statement that the value of a dollar depends upon the num-ber of the dollars, that the dollars might be made cheap by making them pientiful and dear by mak-debtors. "The gold bug," he said, "and I use the term with all, the kindly feeling entertained by my opponents when they call me a lunatic—." The laugh drowned the rest of the sentence. "I never feel hard names," the speaker continued. "If a man calls me a hard name and I'm it, I have no right to complain, and if I'm not it, his calling mo it don't make me it."

Then he came to the "classes" versus the "masses" and declared that the reason the gold-bugs wanted the gold standard was because they were selish—they had all the money and they profited in proportion as it became dearer. "The man that has the money is glad when its price goes up. If the farmer may feed his hogs with corn to make them grow fat, may not the capitalist feed his dollars with legislation to make them grow fat." The speaker ridiculed the idea of any money-tower wanting the gold standard on account of love for the people. "When I meet a selfish man I'm glad," he said. "He admits that he is selfish and I know how to touch him; but when I find an unselfish man I don't know how to approach him. I am told that nowadays when a New-York financier is troubled with insemina and goes to a physician needs to ask no questions. He just says: "Quit worrying about the workingman and then you can sleep."

President McDonald lest no time introducing Mr. Bryan, which was a fortunate thing, for Mr. Bryan spoke for an hour and twenty minutes. His sublence, however, listened cagerly to every word and frequently manifested its approval by hearry applance Mr. Bryan has lost none of the graces of speaking that made him such an attractive speaker during the campaign. He spoke entirely without nates, as he has done ever since his undeasant experience with manuscript at Madison Square Garsian on the occasion of his visit to New-York lest August. His speech last evening, however, contained little that he has not already said here before. He gave the same cry for cheap money and the same call for the "massea" to lessift themselves against the "classis."

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE MR ST. JOHN.

He first spoke tenderly of the late William P. St. John, whom he declared to be as much a marty to his convictions as any one ever burned at the stake. "The world," said he, "would be 1 for off of all would stand by their convictions as ine did, come what might. But there is one emisciation for those who fight for the truth. They know that when

New-Haven, Conn., Feb. 26.—Frank J. Brown, counsel for J. N. Norcross, of New-York, who last night attached the box receipts of William J. Bryan's lecture here, said this morning that the attachment had not been released. Mr. Bryan's manager declared last night that the process would not stand, as the lecture was not one in the regular course Mr. Bryan was to deliver, but one ar-ranged privately. The box receipts are in the hands of Alexander Troup, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee. The claim is made refuge in falsity and cry out that the reformer is by Norcross as Bryan's advance agent in the lectan enemy not of the abuses of government but of government itself. that the scanon of grand opera begun at the Audi-torium last Monday would end one week from to-morrow, it was announced to-night that the com-pany would remain four weeks. This was Mr. his and asked for something to eat, and was re-fused by his friend on the ground that he had trouble enough to provide for his own, although that friend was one of those who had so cast his Cincinnati the weeks. This was Mr. Grau's original intention, and to-night's statement sets at rest all stories to the effect that the com-pany would give performances in St. Louis and Cincinnati the week after next.
